The Conservative government introduced an Economic and Fiscal statement last week that failed to provide economic relief for Canadians or any measures to get the economy back on track.

We need jobs, we need justice. Canadians need a government that shows leadership. The opposition parties are acting in a responsible manner.

They are not going to force another costly and time-consuming election. Instead, the Liberals and the NDP are planning to form a coalition government, with the support of the Bloc Québécois in the House of Commons, to get this Parliament to address the economic crisis in a way that benefits workers and their families.

Let's support a coalition government that will get us through this economic crisis.
